

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes:
"As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

EULOGY ON JOHN PENDARIES DELIVERED BY O. A. LARRAZOLO

Following is the eulogy pronounced by Hon. O. A. Larrazolo at the open grave of John Pendaries in Mt. Calvary cemetery, Tuesday morning. In the presence of a large concourse of mourning relatives, friends and acquaintances of the deceased citizen:

My Friends: Once more do we gather at the brink of the grave, to pay our respects and to say an revoir to a well beloved friend, who has ended his mission here with us, and has gone to join the dear ones that awaited his coming in the realm of eternity.

It is always true, in life as well as in death, that the parting is ever more painful to those who remain behind; he who goes will, ever and anon, cast a longing glance backward, and a deep sigh will escape him for those who mourn his going; but, then, an ever changing scenery, new vistas opening before him and the varying conditions that surround him at every stage of the journey, all tend to distract his mind and bring surcease to sorrow. This, which experience proves to be true of the living, must be particularly so of those who, having freed themselves of their perishable prison-house here on earth, have gone to take their places near the seat of immortality. But he who remains behind occupies a far different situation; for him there is no change of panorama but, following the even tenor of an every-day life, it is for him to bleed anew at every moment, when entering the vacant chamber, on beholding the empty chair, the picture hanging on the wall, and, wrapped in the intensity of his bereavement, must he ever dwell in a world of withering recollections.

To those, therefore, who at the bier of our departed friend have come to bid a long farewell to a kind, loving and devoted father, who no longer here on earth will listen to the gentle voice, nor feel the affectionate caress of the fond parent whose strong hand led them safely through the treacherous paths of life, whose matured judgment, like a beacon light, guided their barks through life's stormy sea, to them we extend the warm hand of sympathy, and mourn with them for their great loss, while ourselves most keenly feel the separation of one who was really a friend. His friends, however, will find satisfaction, and his near relatives a measure of comfort, in the conscious knowledge that of him it may be truthfully said, that the world is better for his having lived; his was a long life, he was blessed with many years, and through the varied business activities and ventures that marked his career, he was ever the true type and the living example of the truly honorable and conscientious Christian gentleman; fair in all his dealings with his fellows, scrupulously punctual in meeting his personal obligations, heedful of the rights of others while oftentimes unmindful of his own, ever confiding in Providence and never losing heart in adversity, always meeting reverses with renewed courage, his generous hospitality almost verging on the prodigal, and, with the happy sunshine of youth beaming resplendent in his venerable age, the true Christian, the loyal friend, the worthy citizen and the loving father, has reached the end of his toilsome journey loaded with years, but bearing with him to his new home the imperishable testimonials of the love and respect of all who knew him, the sturdy veteran "with unfaltering trust now approaches his grave like one who wraps the draperies of his couch around him and lies down to pleasant dreams."

Relatives and friends of the departed one, be not cast down in despair, but look upwards and have faith, and trust, for he whose hour-glass has shifted its tranquil sands in the peaceful quiet of his country home, has not died forever, he has but gone before, and when in God's own good time our turn shall come to render unto nature the tribute of our own lives, we shall all be most happily reunited to the loved ones above, who first taught us how to live, and then showed us how to die.

MEMORIAL WINDOW TO REV. HENRY FORRESTER

The beautiful new memorial window for the St. John's Episcopal church arrived in Albuquerque and has already been placed in position immediately over the pulpit. The scene on the window is in colors, representing the three Marys at the sepulchre and is a work of art. The memorial window is the gift of St. John's Guild, an auxiliary of the church, and is in memory of Rev. Henry Forrester, founder of the church, who died about five years ago.

A small inscription bearing the words, "He is Risen," graces the top of the window, while the following inscription is at the bottom: "To the Glory of God, and in Grateful Memory of the Rev. Henry Forrester, founder of This Church; Born July 6, 1841; Entered Into Rest September 20, 1904. May Light Perpetual Shine Upon Him."

Special services will be held in the church Sunday morning, beginning at 11 o'clock at which time the window will be unveiled, followed by a prayer of dedication and consecration. The choir will render a repetition of the Easter song service for this occasion and Rev. Fletcher Cook will deliver an address on "The Isles Shall Wait for His Law."

Deafness Cannot be Cured. by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Rheumatism.

More than nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles, due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism. In such cases no internal treatment is required. The free application of Chamberlain's Liniment is all that is needed, and it is certain to give quick relief. Give it a trial and see for yourself how quickly it relieves the pain and soreness. The medicines usually given internally for rheumatism are poisonous or very strong medicines. They are worse than useless in cases of chronic and muscular rheumatism. For sale by all dealers.
